

Inviron wins Colt Data Centre contract extension

4 years ago

Inviron has successfully secured a rolling three-year deal with Colt. Delivering a best-in-class service, Colt is a pioneer of modular, flexible design and operation of highly resilient and efficient data centres.

Their portfolio, comprising of Data Centres, Nodes and Local Distribution Networks (LDNs), has organically grown over the years and stretches the length and breadth of the UK and parts of Ireland.

Continuing a 12 year partnership, Inviron provide Technical FM services on all properties and critical systems utilising a dedicated highly skilled front line team.

With world renowned clients, Inviron continues to assist Colt in providing a first class service for their network services, recently validated and re-accredited by the Uptime Institutes M&O certification.

Noel Clancy, Inviron's Managing Director commented: "Data Centres are a key primarily sector for Inviron and we are delighted to see our partnership with Colt extended. It is a great testament when a client chooses to work with us for another term and we are extremely proud to retain this contract. We look forward to this next exciting chapter and identifying ways in which can drive further innovation for Colt."

Alistair Farndale, Colt's Regional Operations Director commented: "We are pleased to be extending our long-standing partnership with Inviron. As our business and sites continue to grow, Inviron's role in assuring the management and compliance of our systems is key. Through this contract and the ongoing Uptime M&O accreditation, we are safe in the knowledge that the service provided by Inviron to our world renowned clients will remain class leading and resilient."
