

Making public safety a priority at publicly accessible locations

3 years ago

As the security industry waits to see the final elements of Sir John Saunders' report from the Manchester Arena Inquiry, many venue owners and their security providers are turning to the advent of the Protect Duty.

Our Global Head of Security, Steve Gardner, has recently visited several customers to discuss areas to review and present potential actions.

Steve says: "Whilst we wait for the finalisation of the Protect Duty and the output from the Manchester Arena Inquiry, by visiting and presenting to our customers, we are ensuring we continue to keep staff, security teams and site visitors safe. It is critical to ensure we are all working together to defeat the work of extremists."

Read Steve Gardner's thought leadership article here.