

Sam Hockman appointed to strengthen Global Key Accounts efforts

4 years ago

ISS has announced that Sam Hockman has been appointed as CEO, Global Key Accounts and member of the Executive Group Management as of June 2022.

The appointment of Sam Hockman relates to the organisational changes that were announced on 7 December 2021 and will further strengthen the strategic focus on ISS's Global Key Accounts.

Sam Hockman joins ISS from a position as CEO of Energy & Technical Services at Engie UK & Ireland. He is a Fellow of the Royal Institute of Chartered surveyors, the current Chair of the Confederation for British Industry's (CBI) Public Sector Partners Council, the Chair of Smart Schools Councils, a rapidly growing technology focused education charity, and has been a member of the Department for International Trade's UK Investment Council.

"I look forward to welcoming Sam Hockman to our Executive Group Management team. He will play a pivotal role in ensuring that the utmost importance is placed on our customers in the strategic global key account customer segment and by that supporting the implementation of the OneISS strategy," says Group CEO of ISS, Jacob Aarup-Andersen.
