3 years ago

Providing next generation workspace for over 400 people, the 37,800 sq ft seven-storey building on Globe Road is striking, with its flat iron design providing spectacular views across the city from the roof terrace gardens.

Responding to occupiers' expectations and the new ways of working, Globe Point will deliver some of the highest quality workspace in Leeds, along with ground floor break-out space and café kitchen.

A topping out ceremony for the flagship Globe Point development in Leeds has taken place with representatives from BAM Construction, Leeds City Council and other stakeholders in the city attending. BAM began the development in May 2021 on behalf of CEG and the scheme is set for full completion this summer.

Councillor James Lewis, leader of Leeds City Council, said: 'This is a really exciting milestone, not only for the Globe Point development, but also for the regeneration of Leeds's Temple district and the wider South Bank area. High-quality projects like Globe Point are a sign of the strength of the Leeds economy as we continue our recovery from the effects of the COVID-19 pandemic and redouble our efforts to deliver jobs and opportunities for all. It promises to be a worthy and very impressive addition to our city's skyline.'

Globe Point will be the first new build office to complete in Leeds City Centre this year.

Simon Sutcliffe, Construction Director, BAM, said: "BAM's buildings are winning sustainability awards across the UK. Our knowledge and understanding, which spans both buildings and the design and construction process, is being transferred to Globe Point. This flagship city centre building is a BREEAM

Excellent development and it is really taking shape.”
