

OUTCO partners National Pride in the delivery of St Ninian's Wellness Site

3 years ago

St Ninians is located in the village of Kelty, East Central Scotland alongside one of the busiest motorways (M90 J4) which connects Edinburgh, Perth, Dundee and Aberdeen.

St Ninian's East, 181m in height, is often referred to as the "walnut whip" due to the two intertwined spiralling paths leading to its summit. It is one in a series of wellness centres designed to meet an ever-increasing need for places close to nature for mental health and well-being.

St Ninians Wellness subscribes to the evidential fact that healthy lifestyles promoting outdoor activities is a considerable benefit to the population of all ages.

OUTCO are the Outdoor Estate Compliance Experts. They offer the UK's first end-to-end estate maintenance and compliance solution powered by smart technology. They provide a full range of grounds maintenance, surfacing, infrastructure, EV and winter services to our clients nationwide.

By co-operating with local authorities, health and social care services and stakeholders, St Ninians Wellness is able to support the community through our sustainable development. Aiming to create sustainable, commercially viable, community benefitting, ethical developments by repurposing and rejuvenating redundant land and buildings and, to reinvest a proportion of profits into these community projects'.

Who are National Pride?

National Pride, the consortium leading this incredible project, completed the acquisition of the site on 31 March 2021 with a goal to create sustainable, commercially viable, community benefitting, ethical developments by repurposing and rejuvenating redundant land and buildings and, to reinvest a proportion of profits into these community projects'. A world-class delivery team was assembled, like-minded professional consultants to create and deliver an exciting leisure and ecotourism destination in line with the current Local Development Plan of Fife Council and the ethos and ethics of National Pride.
