

Bidvest Noonan's GB business puts the final pieces in place

3 years ago

Bidvest Noonan's business in Great Britain has achieved a very important milestone.

With the recent launch of its London Security Solutions business unit, and the appointment of Liz Cummins as its managing director, the platform it envisaged for the business is now in place.

Bidvest Noonan has improved the structure of the business. Today it has four business units, giving it the flexibility, responsiveness and specialist knowledge to deliver outstanding support to its customers.

A new business unit and managing director for London

In February, it launched a new London Security Solutions business unit to enable it to align more closely with the company's growing portfolio of clients in the capital.

In April, Bidvest Noonan appointed Liz Cummins to lead the new business unit as its Managing Director. Liz has a history of success delivering security and front of house services in London and over ten years of senior leadership experience in the facilities services industry.

The new business unit, which draws on the strength and resources of the group, has the speed, flexibility and expertise needed to deliver outstanding service to its clients in the city. It also benefits from increased investment in technology and innovation. In 2021, the company appointed a new Director of Technology Solutions to help leverage cutting-edge security technologies to deliver performance improvements and added value to clients.

Commenting on her appointment, Liz said, “I’m delighted to join Bidvest Noonan and to lead our new London Security Solutions business unit. I joined Bidvest Noonan because I recognised that it is a business that puts people first. Our teams and clients are at the core of all our decisions. In this industry, people make all the difference. I’m looking forward to empowering our people to do their best work and achieve their professional objectives. Together, we will challenge conventions, design innovative solutions and work hard to deliver the best service and value to our clients.”
