

PTSG completes a second staircase refurbishment in London's Albermarle Street

4 years ago

Premier Technical Services Group Ltd \(PTSG\) has delivered specialist services to refurbish and restore a failing fire escape at a prominent street in Central London.

Albermarle Street is one of London's most sought after cultural, retail and restaurant destinations in Mayfair, just off Piccadilly and close to Berkeley Square, Old Bond Street, Dover Street and Green Park. 25 Albermarle Street is home to Oswald's, an exclusive private members' club named after the grandfather of the owner – business mogul Robin Birley.

Oswald's applies no corkage fees to wines its members bring in themselves and members are free to cellar up to 12 of their own wines at the club. Commissioned glassware comes from John Jenkins; the house champagne is Krug.

Before and After Shots

A team from PTSG Building Access Specialists Ltd has been engaged in a project at 25-26 Albermarle Street to refurbish the staircase to the exterior of the building.

While PTSG Building Access Specialists Ltd mainly specialises in working at height, its experienced engineers continue to focus on niche refurbishment restoration projects to make buildings safe. Its specialists are increasingly called upon to carry out refurbishments to staircases such as this one at one of London's most exclusive addresses.
