Paul Anstey, CEO, Government, Sodexo UK & Ireland said: “We are extremely proud and delighted for each of our eight finalists at this year’s British Ex-Forces in Business Awards and we wish them the best of luck for the 8 September.

“Supporting the Armed Forces plays a key part of Sodexo’s Social Impact Pledge. We recognise military-gained skills and qualities translate well into our business and this is showcased brilliantly by the finalists and the many other ex-forces leaders who are part of the Sodexo family.

“It’s a fantastic achievement and a testament that people with military careers can truly thrive in a civilian life, while demonstrating the value people with an Armed Forces background can bring to business.”

Earlier this month Sodexo retained its Gold Employer Recognition Award by the Ministry of Defence in recognition of the company’s commitment and efforts to support the entire Armed Forces community through its strong policies. Sodexo was one of the first organisations to be awarded gold in 2017.
