

The Keyholding Company is awarded a place on ESPO Security Services framework (347)

3 years ago

ESPO, the public sector procurement specialists who support thousands of schools and offices across the country, have approved The Keyholding Company's (TKC) application to become a supplier on their Security Services framework \(347\).

The ESPO Security Services framework (347) provides organisations across the public sector with suppliers who can deliver ad-hoc or planned security requirements. TKC was awarded a place on Lots 1A – 12A of the framework, detailed as suppliers that can deliver Site Related Security Services including keyholding, locking and unlocking, guarding, mobile patrols, and escort services.

Sherrelle Blackwell, Strategic Solutions Director at The Keyholding Company, said: "Securing a place on this framework ensures that public sector institutions can feel comfortable working with us, safe in the knowledge that we are compliant with all key standards and have passed ESPO's rigorous checks."

With a network of 200 security partners across the UK and access to over 11,000 officers, TKC can assist public sector organisations wherever they are in the country. This extensive geographical coverage was also recognised by ESPO, as they awarded TKC a place to deliver services across all nine government-defined regions of England, alongside the three other countries within the UK.

Through this framework, customers gain the advantage of quickly finding quality suppliers who:

- Are fully compliant with relevant standards and accreditations
- Are trusted suppliers of services to similar organisations

- Have pre-agreed to ESPO's terms and conditions of work

Being placed on the ESPO Security Services framework (347) gives organisations confidence that TKC is a trusted supplier that meets the requirements to deliver high-quality security across the public sector.

To learn more about how TKC delivers award-winning security services to 30,000 properties, including over 300 schools, get in touch with our team today or email sales@keyholding.com.