3 years ago

Bidvest Noonan, a market-leading facilities services provider operating across the UK & Ireland, has strengthened its Irish senior management team with the recent promotion of Susan Howard to Operations Director for Healthcare.

Howard, who joined the firm in 2003, has deep expertise and knowledge of the healthcare sector and will enhance the service and value delivered to clients. In her new role, Howard takes ownership of Bidvest Noonan's national healthcare portfolio in Ireland, covering both cleaning and security services.

Speaking on her promotion, Howard said: "I am thrilled to have been given the opportunity to lead our healthcare operations for our business in Ireland. I look forward to building on the platform the business has created in recent years, and ensuring we have the expertise available to support all of our clients."

Managing Director, Anthony Harman commented: "I am delighted that Susan has took up the role as Operations Director for our healthcare division.

"The need for a clean and safe environment in the healthcare sector is more important than ever before, and I have no doubt Susan is the right person to lead both our cleaning and security teams. With an experienced team around her, and long-standing relationships with clients across Ireland, I have no doubt her tenure will be a success."

The appointment follows Bidvest Noonan's ongoing investment in its healthcare operations. Last year, the organisation appointed Emma Power as its Infection Prevention & Control (IPC) Specialist to further develop its subject matter expertise in the sector.
