

Savills appoints new lease administration director for EMEA occupier services team

3 years ago

Maxine Burnett has joined Savills as director to boost its EMEA occupier services team.

Maxine, who joined on 1 August, will head the occupier services lease administration team and will be based between the firm's Leeds office and London headquarters.

Maxine joins from Colliers where, from 2019, she was Head of EMEA Lease Administration. Previously she was Lease Operations Lead for UK at CBRE. She has over 15 years' experience in real estate in property investment, business development, facilities management, interior design and client relationship management. Maxine has worked for multiple portfolios comprising mixed use developments.

At Savills, she will sit within the corporate account management team focusing on lease administration for new and existing clients across Savills occupier services EMEA platform.

Mark Walsh, head of corporate account management for Savills EMEA occupier services, comments: "We are continuing to expand our occupier services team across EMEA as part of our wider strategy to respond to client requests for a globalised service offering and the growth of lease administration is a key part of this. Maxine's knowledge across the real estate sector will undoubtedly enhance our already strong existing offer."

Maxine Burnett, director of lease administration, Savills, adds: "I am very excited to be joining Savills and working with the EMEA occupier services team to drive the business's lease administration services forward."
