

GTFM renews relationship with Surrey Police

3 years ago

Galliford Try's Facilities Management business (GTFM) has strengthened its relationship with Surrey Police, after being awarded a further three-year contract to provide facilities management services to its estate.

The agreement is worth approximately £1.3m per annum to the business and will see GTFM maintaining 86 buildings, ranging from office areas, forensic labs, custody suites, recovered property stores and police houses. The contract will allow GTFM's operational teams to continue to build upon the relationships developed through the open book approach.

Steve Catlin, Regional Director for GTFM, commented: "I am very proud of our team's hard work since 2019 which has been reflected in our contract renewal with Surrey Police. I look forward to working with the service over the next four years, providing them with the environment their officers and staff deserve."
