

Atalian Servest appoints Andy Porter as digital solutions manager

3 years ago

Global facilities management provider Atalian Servest has appointed Andy Porter as digital solutions manager to excel Atalian Servest's technological approach across its full-service FM offering.

As part of the FM service provider's efforts to implement, maintain and continually innovate with technology enabled FM, Porter will challenge the status quo and implement new solutions that focus on elevating efficiencies and services to customers.

Porter brings over a decade of experience in project management, data analytics, logistics, innovation and process development from his previous role at City Facilities Management.

He implemented solutions for City Facilities Management across 600 sites, including retail, distribution and home offices throughout the UK and Northern Ireland, playing a fundamental role in significant change projects and initiatives designed to optimise performance, improve service quality, and reduce costs.

Andy Porter, digital solutions manager for Atalian Servest said: "The FM industry must fully embrace the potential of technology to transform how it serves and supports its customers. I am pleased to be guiding technological integration at Atalian Servest and delivering a range of digitally enabled FM solutions."

Daniel Dickson, CEO of Atalian Servest UK & Ireland, said: "We're delighted to welcome Andy to the team. His extensive knowledge and expertise will support Atalian Servest in our journey towards an increasingly digitally led FM landscape, adding real value to our customers and partners."
