

Introducing CSE Crosscom to the UK market

4 years ago

CSE Chatterbox is delighted to announce that CSE Chatterbox has aligned with the global brand to become CSE Crosscom.

In addition, CSE Crosscom, the recognised critical communications leaders throughout the Asia Pacific region, brings together four leading independent two-way radio and communication specialists from throughout the UK, uniting them as one organisation. These are CSE Chatterbox, CSE Zycomm, CSE Radiotek and DTS, each business will align with the CSE Crosscom brand over the coming months.

Each client will receive the same quality levels of service and support, enhanced by the strength, knowledge and backing of the CSE Crosscom group. All contact details will remain the same to make the transition seamless with the new website launched last month.

In all global markets, CSE Crosscom offers their clients the benefit of well-established relationships with world-class technology partners, as well as the capacity to harness emerging technologies and the expertise of CSE Global group of companies.

CSE Crosscom attracts some of the most talented specialists in the business who work to design, deliver and support solutions for every client that will meet and often exceed their expectations.

“I began Chatterbox a little over 30 years ago and this has developed from a small family run business to a leading player in the global communications market, our mission is to provide the ultimate communications solutions through intelligent systems integration for every client, now and for the future” says Gary Leatherby, Managing Director. “We will make the transition seamless for our clients, the only thing that will change is increased capability from being part of a global brand".
