

Andron shortlisted for the Social Sustainability, Diversity & Inclusion Award at the edie Awards 2023

3 years ago

Andron is delighted to announce its success in making the shortlist for the edie Awards 2023, joining some of the UK's most sustainable businesses in the running for the Social Sustainability, Diversity & Inclusion category award.

Now in its 16th year, the UK's largest sustainability award scheme recognises and rewards excellence across the spectrum of green business. From the most ambitious net-zero carbon programmes to impactful social sustainability initiatives, edie celebrates the incredible people, projects and partnerships transforming business for good.

Andron's successful shortlisting comes in recognition of its employability programme, Inclusive Futures: an initiative providing life-changing employment opportunities to people furthest from the job market, including people from a background of homelessness. Together with UK charities such as Social Bite, we are breaking down the barriers many people face on their route to employment and have already provided ten jobs through the programme. More on our Inclusive Futures programme here.

As we continue to work hard to expand the impact of Inclusive Futures and open up more employment opportunities, we are proud that our commitment towards being a socially sustainable, diverse and inclusive business has been recognised by edie.

The winners will be announced in an awards ceremony scheduled for 30th March 2023 at the Park Plaza London, Westminster. The full shortlist can be found here.
