

Savills central London office agency team expands in west end

3 years ago

Savills Central London office agency team continues to expand with the appointment of Isaac Begley who joins as a surveyor, based at the firm's Margaret Street head office.

Isaac joins from Acorpp – Commercial Real Estate in Perth, Australia where he spent three years in the firm's tenant representation team. His experience involves a wide variety of commercial property work for office and industrial occupiers, managing property portfolios for government departments and representing publicly listed corporations across Australia. His key focus was tenant representation across the Perth office market, representing mining and mining services based businesses.

At Savills Isaac will work closely with the landlord and tenant representation Central London teams to provide advice on the disposal and acquisition of leasehold office premises in West End.

Hunter Booth, head of the West End office agency team at Savills, comments: "We are keen to build a team underpinned by a variety of experiences, perspectives and insights. Isaac brings with him exactly this and so we are extremely pleased to welcome him into our expanding team."
