

PTSG shows Kings Cross Estate the ropes

3 years ago

Premier Technical Services Group Ltd (PTSG) is currently conducting an eight-building survey at Kings Cross Estate in London.

Over the past 20 years, King's Cross has been transformed and is currently one of the largest regeneration projects in the UK. Central Saint Martins, the world-famous art college, became the first tenant in 2011. Since then, global businesses such as Google, Meta, AstraZeneca, Sony Music Entertainment UK, Universal Music and Nike have chosen to make King's Cross their home. When complete, over 40,000 people will live, work and study there.

The King's Cross Estate is owned by the King's Cross Central Limited Partnership (KCCLP), made up of pension fund AustralianSuper, clients of the international business of Federated Hermes and Argent investors. Occupying 67 acres, the estate comprises 50 new and restored buildings, 1,750 new homes, 10 public parks, 100 shops and restaurants and 26 acres of open space.

Rope access specialists from PTSG Building Access Specialists Ltd have been carrying out a full survey of eight buildings at the site – mainly new office buildings and those that are part of the tech hub.

PTSG's Building Access Specialists have many years' experience in delivering a wide range of specialist services at height. Their extensive knowledge of working at height means they can access virtually any part of any building – either internally or externally for cleaning and refurbishment purposes.