

Savills Property Management hires director to support shopping and retail park portfolio

3 years ago

Savills has expanded the shopping centre team within its property management division, appointing Saagar Sachdev as a director, to help manage portfolios across the UK.

Based at the firm's London head office on Margaret Street, Saagar will be working to further develop client relationships and build upon the extensive work already done onboarding and managing a number of trophy retail assets across the UK.

Saagar is a Chartered Surveyor and has worked for 12 years at Workman across a wide range of shopping centre schemes and retail parks for a variety of clients from pension funds and REITS to small private investors.

Richard Hulme, head of retail property management, comments: "We are excited to welcome Saagar to the team. He brings a wealth of knowledge and experience within retail property management to meet the future needs of clients."

Saagar Sachdev, says: "I am delighted to be joining Savills at an exciting time of expansion and look forward to working with the team to build upon the exceptional work done so far. My experience has taught me that one size does not fit all. Similarly, with each retail asset, the approach to property management is always tailored to suit."
