

Artic wins Northeastern University London contract

March 15, 2023

Artic Building Services is thrilled to announce its latest contract win with Northeastern University London.

It was invited to provide a maintenance proposal to Northeastern University London at Devon House. It drew on extensive experience in delivering similar services to clients in London's Higher Education sector and its sustainable initiatives to create a comprehensive plan.

Scope of Contract:

Under this contract, a dedicated Artic Engineer will provide maintenance cover to the M&E and building services included within the scope of the contract. This includes the maintenance and upkeep of various systems and equipment such as air conditioning, heating, plumbing, electrical, fire safety, acoustic and ventilation systems.

Planned Preventative Maintenance:

Artic will provide Northeastern University London with a bespoke annual PPM planner around the academic calendar that will outline all planned preventative maintenance tasks. This proactive approach ensures that maintenance is carried out on time with minimal disruption to teaching and University operations and precisely, thus ensuring less downtime, reactive issues and extending the lifecycle of the assets concerned.

Compliance with Relevant National Legislation:

To ensure the safe and efficient operation of M&E within Northeastern University London, all regulation and legislative compliance areas will be delivered and managed by Artic, including all specialist items of plant on the site asset list which will be serviced by Artic's appointed specialist subcontractor partner companies, who will ensure industry compliance with all relevant national legislation. This includes adherence to regulations and guidelines such as Health and Safety, Building and Fire Regulations, and Environmental Standards.

About Northeastern University London:

Based in the heart of London, Northeastern University London (Northeastern University London) has developed a reputation for delivering an excellent university experience and has exceeded all Russell Group universities for overall student satisfaction in the UK's National Student Survey for four consecutive years (NSS 2019, 2020, 2021 and 2022).
