

No shortage of female entrepreneurs at Harrogate facility

2 years ago

One of Harrogate's largest offices spaces, Windsor House, is celebrating International Women's Day, which takes place today (8th March) by shining a spotlight on the women-led businesses within its building.

International Women's Day is a global day that recognises the social, economic, cultural, and political achievements of women.

With 110 businesses in its building in total, 35 of them are owned or run by female entrepreneurs – operating in sectors including finance, marketing, law, HR, healthcare, construction and more.

Some of the female-led businesses are Angela Swift Developments, The Brain Collective, Limelight HR, The Big Bamboo Agency, The Notary Solution, Evolve Psychology Services, Wild & Co, Alchemy Media, Legacy Jewellery, Saxton Partners, Pippa Seed Coaching, HGface and Barnes Family Law.

Windsor House, which overlooks Harrogate's Valley Gardens, boasts 75,000 sq. ft of flexible workspace. The end of last year witnessed the opening of a plush new breakout area and café, occupying an area of the former Grand Hotel's ground floor that had been untouched for more than three decades.

Last month, MP for Harrogate and Knaresborough Andrew Jones visited the facility to see for himself the extensive refurbishment undertaken by owner Boulton Brooks.

Building manager Karen Winspear commented: "International Women's Day is an important event, designed to mark and champion the success of women, which is something we feel passionate about promoting."

"We are very proud that so many female entrepreneurs in Windsor House have chosen us as their business address and have grown and thrived under our roof. They continue to inspire us all and we wish them every success in the future."
