

Panther Logistics 'special operations' offers bespoke delivery solutions to commercial scale enterprises

2 years ago

A leading two-person delivery specialist, Panther Logistics has established its new Special Operations Service offerings to support large scale commercial distributions and bespoke client service requirements.

Panther's new Special Operations has been launched in response to increasing demand to provide bespoke support solutions for its delivery clients.

These new commercial opportunities allow Panther to diversify from its industry leading two-man consumer delivery service into hospitality and wider commercial operations, offering support across the country to trade clients requiring higher volume deliveries that necessitate a more tailored individual solution, as well as increasingly complex assembly requirements.

"The formation of our Special Operations service is yet another milestone for Panther and further demonstrates our ability to consistently push the boundaries," says Matthew Thomlinson, Operations Planning Director, Panther.

"The special operations delivery solution by Panther has been in discussion since the start of 2022, and we are delighted to see it come to fruition. The bespoke delivery solutions that this new service offers allow businesses that require more tailored distribution operations to benefit from the excellent services Panther offer."

To support the operation, Panther has invested in the sourcing and training of select teams of specialist installers, exclusively assigned to the Special Operations service offering to ensure a dedicated, consistent and exceptional service level.

The Panther Special Operations offering has already begun operating for a number of high profile clients in delivering tailored solutions for large scale distributions. Panther believes there is no one size fits all solution so work with the client to create an efficient delivery operation that fits their needs and guarantees exceptional service.

The Special Operations service offering follows other notable successes for Panther, who recently won a contract with Sky to exclusively deliver its new Sky Glass smart TVs and has recently expanded its operation into ROI, offering its industry leading white glove two-person delivery service across the country.