

Tilbury Douglas is proud to support Hey Girls charity

2 years ago

Tilbury Douglas is proud to support Hey Girls, an award-winning, buy-one, donate-one, social enterprise creating plant-powered period products.

Via supply partner Bryson, Tilbury Douglas has committed to provide period products free of charge on all its construction sites and offices. The products are sourced via Hey Girls, which means for every product purchased, a product is provided to those in need across the UK.

Lucy Davies, Head of Social Value at Tilbury Douglas, commented: “As part of our Better Together initiative, focused on making our workplaces more inclusive and diverse, we are committed to supporting and encouraging more women into construction. By making period products available across all our sites, we hope this is a step forward and by sourcing products from Hey Girls, we will also be helping those facing period poverty in the wider community.”

Hey Girls products are also good for the environment, as they come in compostable or recyclable packaging and are made from sustainability sourced materials.