Procurement organisation Fusion21 has announced the successful appointment of Eric Wright Construction to its national Refurbishment, Construction, New Build and Modular Buildings Framework worth up to £305 million over a four-year period.

Following a competitive tender process, a total of 61 specialist firms – 64% being SMEs, have secured a place on the framework which has been developed to support public sector organisations, including housing, education, and healthcare providers to deliver construction programmes. The framework offers internal and external refurbishment, construction, new build and modular buildings.

James Eager, Director of Eric Wright Construction said: "We are absolutely delighted to be chosen as a framework partner on Fusion 21's Refurbishment, Construction, New Build and Modular Buildings Framework. It is extremely positive that clients know that they have pre-procured sustainable construction partners who can work collaboratively to deliver their vision."

Peter Francis, Executive Director of Operations at Fusion21 said: "Having responded to member and supply chain feedback, we have created a commercially efficient framework solution that will support the delivery of regeneration programmes, modernisation and upgrade works as well as the expansion of public sector estates.

"Fusion21 members accessing this compliant framework will benefit from support given by our technical procurement experts and an experienced supply chain, measurable efficiency savings, flexible call-off options – including direct award and geographical coverage across the UK down to a regional and local level – and social value delivery aligned to organisational priorities."
