2 years ago

Hard services provider Pareto has reported its annual turnover has risen for the eighth consecutive year.

Figures published this week for the year ending September 2022, show 75% growth in organic turnover to £32m. This builds on the company's growth since its inception, with the business on course to grow another 25% in 2023.

The past two years has seen it deliver an organisational transformation with significant investment in systems, people and company infrastructure. This includes securing new partnerships with leading organisations such as University of Reading, Cazoo, Fletchers Solicitors and Womble Bond Dickinson.

Further to this, the company has developed its environmental and social value offering with the award winning kickstart scheme, achieving carbon neutrality and signing up to seven new workplace charters.

It states that it is being seen as the leading light in the field of ESG, after winning numerous awards last year. This, together with a focussed customer and employee engagement culture, continues to drive success.

Chief executive officer Dave Richards said: "This has been a significant year in Pareto's organisational maturity and revenue growth. We are delighted to see Pareto continue to achieve well above market organic growth and secure partnerships with some of the most exciting workspaces in the sector. We continue to be incredibly grateful to our team members who make this all possible and are excited about what we can achieve in 2023.

"Pareto continues to go from strength to strength in all areas and we are proud of the fact that we are changing the face of FM."
