

HSEQ manager recruited for energy and resources business

2 years ago

The Sodexo Energy & Resources business has appointed Janine Brand as health, safety, environment and quality (HSEQ) manager.

She joins from Aberdeen-based Hydrasun, where she led the company through the Safety Certificate for Contractors (SCC) for the Netherlands and Germany with zero findings. She also successfully project managed the commissioning and installation of a Hydrogen Refuelling Station for TotalEnergies with zero accidents and incidents.

Ms Brand has 12 years' experience within HSE, where she was the HSE lead for Offshore Energies UK (OEUK), the representative body for the UK offshore energy industries.

At OEUK she authored the Oil and Gas UK (OGUK) 2019 H&S Report and technical note for the oil and gas industry on the use of the emergency response and rescue vessels.

In her new role, Ms Brand will lead the HSEQ for the Energy & Resources business, covering fire, food services, wellbeing, and environment, Janine will also provide coaching and direction on compliance.

Energy & Resources managing director Ed Morrow said: "We are delighted to welcome Janine to our team, she joins us with extensive HSE experience particularly within the oil and gas sector. We look forward to the valuable contribution her expertise will bring to our business and that of our clients as she has done in her previous roles."

The company's energy and resources business delivers catering, hospitality, welfare, FM services, property management and refurbishments services to over 40 onshore energy and offshore and marine client sites throughout the UK.

It is committed to supporting the wellbeing and meeting the evolving needs of employees working in often isolated and complex environments such as an offshore platform in the North Sea or an onshore LNG plant.
