

Smart Buildings Show registrations open

2 years ago

The Smart Buildings Show 2023 has announced that visitor registration is now open for this year's event, which will take place on 18-19 October 2023 at ExCeL, London, and is free to attend.

The show intends to connect visitors to the latest information and technology and provide the information to arrive make an informed decision on delivering buildings more economically-viable for owners and more functional for occupiers.

It will also include a conference programme to include presentations from industry leaders and deliver thought-provoking content, inspiring visitors to further explore the latest trends and opportunities. The deadline for applications to join the speaker programme is Friday 30 June 2023.

The 2022 show included more than 70 exhibitors showcasing the latest product innovations designed to deliver smarter buildings. Over the two-day event, 2,283 visitors attended the exhibition hall and took in presentations from more than 50 leading speakers discussing a diverse range of industry hot topics, from sustainability and ESG to smart building networks and infrastructure.

Event director Ian Garmeson said: "We look forward to welcoming visitors back to the stand out event in the smart buildings industry calendar. Feedback on last year's event from visitors and exhibitors was overwhelmingly positive – there was a 40 per cent increase in attendance compared to the 2021 event – and we are expecting a high level of interest once again as the value of smart buildings is recognised more and more in the race toward Net Zero."