

Avison Young brings new expertise to its London Markets team, with Director Andy Ingram

3 years ago

Global real estate firm Avison Young has announced senior external hire Andy Ingram, who joins in the role of Director, as the latest addition to the London Markets team, specialising in occupier advisory.

A Chartered Surveyor with nine years' experience in the commercial real estate industry, Andy Ingram brings extensive experience of the central London office market. He has predominantly advised occupiers in the City Fringe and West End markets – two key sub-markets where Avison Young sees potential in growing their offering.

Ingram will be a part of the Occupier Advisory team within London Markets working closely with his colleagues in the Investment, Leasing and Flexible Offices teams. The appointment builds on Avison Young's intention to invest in its people and expertise, with the London Markets team continuing its focus to grow across the Capital. Ingram will focus on advising companies with their occupational strategies, including office acquisition, lease renewals and liability mitigation processes.

Prior to joining Avison Young, Ingram worked at Anton Page, where he joined in December 2017 to head the Tenant Representation arm of the business. His responsibilities included leveraging and maintaining existing relationships, pitching for new business and working across a number of transactions simultaneously. He began his career at Morgan Pryce Ltd in September 2014.

Andy Ingram, Director of London Markets at Avison Young, said: "It is brilliant to be taking on this new role at Avison Young, at such an exciting time for the London Markets team, and in an everchanging economic landscape. I look forward to collaborating with the wider AY team over the coming months."

Dominic Amey, Managing Director of London Markets at Avison Young, said: “We are delighted to welcome Andy Ingram into our London Market’s business. Andy’s experience and expertise will add to what I believe is one of the most high-quality Occupier Advisory teams in London. We look forward to announcing further hires over the Summer as we continue to move forwards with our plans for growth. We want to be the go-to occupier advisory firm, advising occupiers across London from start-ups to established corporates.”.

Stuart Commins, Head of London Occupier Advisory at Avison Young, said: “Andy is a fantastic addition to the team, specifically his network and track record from his career to date in the West End and City Fringe sub-markets. He will broaden our skillset and expertise in advising occupiers across London.”