

Cabin cleaning deal secured at Britain's busiest airport

2 years ago

Integrated service provider ABM has secured a three year cabin cleaning contract with one of South America's largest carriers – Latam Airlines, extending its presence at London Heathrow Airport.

The company now works with a total of 27 airlines, which involves the cleaning of approximately 8m seats every year.

With over a decade of experience working with the airport and the airlines which operate there, the new contract will see the the company's team cleaning 150,000 seats annually for its new client. Latam Group has recently announced seven new routes and a 26.5% increase in passengers in June compared with 2022.

Managing director Jim Niblock said: "We are delighted to be working directly with LATAM Airlines, building on an existing relationship, and a step closer to becoming one of the business' trusted long-term providers.

"We look forward to delivering exceptional service to passengers travelling with LATAM Airlines. With cabin cleaning as one of our two core services, we have decades of sustainable service delivery experience and world class expertise to bring to the partnership."

A Latam Airlines spokesperson said: "This partnership with ABM reflects our commitment to providing passengers with the highest standards of cleanliness and hygiene, ensuring a safe and comfortable journey on LATAM Airlines. We look forward to working closely with ABM and maintaining the highest standards of cleanliness on all our aircrafts at Heathrow, UK's busiest airport."
