

Inaugural ESG impact statement launched

3 years ago

Hard services provider Pareto has launched its first ESG impact statement covering its ESG activities worked in the last few years.

These includes initiatives ranging from being awarded The Social Value Award at the IWFM Impact Awards for participation in the Kickstart Scheme, commissioning its own honey, planting more than 1,000 trees and achieving carbon neutral status.

Social impact director Emma Wilson said: “We are immensely proud of what we have created at Pareto. This organisation was created to deliver exceptional services to our client partners, but, as importantly, to create social value and real change. Pareto truly wears it’s ESG colours on its sleeve and can demonstrate real action in so many different areas.

“We don’t pretend to have all the answers, and we are still learning, but with each initiative that we deliver, we know we are making a true impact. We want to enable and inspire our teams to play their part, and so Pareto becomes the framework that people can build upon, we want others to follow our lead, to not only change the face of FM, but ultimately, change the world.”
