

Tilbury Douglas appoints new Health Sector Director

2 years ago

Tilbury Douglas, a leading UK building, infrastructure, engineering and fit-out business, has announced the appointment of Gordon Stirling as National Health Director.

With more than 30 years of experience within the industry, Gordon has successfully delivered multiple projects and frameworks in healthcare, covering primary, acute and mental health. He has helped to secure more than £1bn of health sector awards, and successfully securing national procurement frameworks including P21, P22, P23, Building for Wales and Frameworks Scotland.

Gordon Stirling commented: "I'm excited to join Tilbury Douglas to help identify and drive new opportunities in the sector and further develop the national health strategy. I'm passionate about collaborative working with NHS clients, specialist healthcare consultants and the supply chain to drive efficiencies and look forward to working with our regional teams to build upon the legacy of providing clients and patients with exceptional care facilities fit for the future."

Andrew Jowett, Strategic Director at Tilbury Douglas, added: "Having competed with, but also worked alongside Gordon at framework level for 20 years, I would like to warmly welcome him to our team and this important role for the business. We look forward to continued success in the Healthcare sector."