

Ecoserv Group expands executive team

2 years ago

Stephen Jones and Jim Humphrey have joined the executive team of sustainable commercial cleaning specialist Ecoserv Group, as well as both becoming shareholders in the business.

Stephen Jones will take on the role of Chief Operating Officer (COO), while Jim Humphrey will be responsible for key accounts and procurement as a Shareholding Director.

As COO, Stephen Jones will be responsible for overseeing the company's operations and providing strategic direction for business activities, in line with the organisation's growth and financial plans. He has gained extensive experience in housekeeping, industrial factory cleaning, and post-construction cleaning in the building sector having managed Ecoserv Group's southwest region since 2021.

Jim Humphrey joined Ecocleen in 2016 as the Regional Director for the Southwest franchise, having had a 20-year career in the police service. He sold his business in 2021 but remained at the rebranded Ecoserv Group business in a client relationship and sales position. In his new role, he will continue to provide operational, HR, sales support to the southwest region in addition to his key accounts and procurement focus.

Jean-Henri Beukes, CEO of Ecoserv Group commented: "Stephen and Jim bring a wealth of contract cleaning experience, so we are delighted they have joined the executive team. They have both made considerable contributions to the business in the southwest region and their good practice expertise will add significant value to the wider group moving forward."
