

International Security Expo and co-located International Cyber Expo returns

2 years ago

International Security Expo (ISE) and the co-located International Cyber Expo (ICE) returns to London on 26-27 September 2023, including government agencies and industry partners to showcase a wide range of solutions designed to improve the physical and cyber security and resilience of businesses, people and critical infrastructures.

The events are expected to welcome an audience of approximately 15,000 attendees to London's Olympia, and will play host to 450+ exhibitors offering the latest security solutions devised by the world's leading suppliers.

Live Demonstrations

The events are interactive and will offer live immersive experiences throughout both days. British Transport Police will be showcasing a wide range of their equipment and tools including firearms and less lethal devices, the LPCB Live Testing Lab, in association with LPCB, supported by the PSSA and sponsored by Barkers Fencing, will feature professional forced entry specialists who will be put up against a range of physical security products, such as windows, fencing, and doorsets, and Counter-EO UK, CBRN-UK and DPAC will be conducting a series of counter threat scenario-based demonstrations.

On the cyber side there is also the real-time cyber-attack demonstrator in association with CrisisCast where visitors will be able to see and understand the psychology and motivating factors behind an attack from two perspectives – the attackers and the CEO's boardroom. Cyber Griffin's award-winning Table Top Exercises will explore the decisions that people make to protect their businesses from modern-day threats testing visitor's responses to hacking and malware attacks. And new for 2023 the Metropolitan Police

Escape Room will test skills and wits in a thrilling cybercrime-solving adventure against the clock.

The event will include educational content, which offers CPD to all attendees courtesy of The Security Institute. There are four main stages – the International Security Conference, the International Risk and Resilience Conference, the Global Counter Terror and Serious and Organised Crime Summit and the Global Cyber Summit, plus two solutions theatres showcasing real-life applications, case studies and the latest product innovations and updates essential to mitigating security threats. The content is delivered by industry experts, government and academia with speakers confirmed from Microsoft, FBI, Home Office, Office for Homeland Security, NaCTSO, NCA, UK Civil Aviation Authority, NATO, Cabinet Office and many more. Sessions will look at the implementation of new policies and techniques and provide practical takeaways about how these can be applied. Martyn's Law, Ukraine, rise of AI and diversity are all key themes this year.

Group event director Rachael Shattock said: "International Security Expo and International Cyber Expo are unmissable events for global physical and cyber security professionals. Nowhere else will they benefit from so much exclusive information all for free. I am so pleased to bring the Wellbeing Corner in this year too. Security professionals are the unsung heroes who safeguard our world, but we understand that it comes with immense responsibility and stress. Visitors can step into this serene oasis amidst the bustling expo, relax, recharge and indulge in mindfulness activities, meditation sessions, and expert-guided techniques to promote a healthier work-life balance."
