

Jaguar announces newest intake of apprentices

2 years ago

Jaguar Building Services is pleased to introduce its latest intake of apprentices to Jaguar.

With a total of 22 apprentices at Jaguar, the apprentice program continues to thrive. Over the next 4 years, each apprentice will rotate every 6 months to a different building within our portfolio. This will allow them to learn the ropes of the building service industry and be exposed to different management styles.

Roger Starling, Business Unit Head, commented: “Our commitment to train the next generation of skilled engineers continues, and we are excited to welcome 7 driven individuals to our team.

“We look forward to witnessing our new apprentices progress at Jaguar. We are confident they will not only contribute fresh and innovative perspectives to our team but also gain invaluable skills and experiences that will shape their careers.”
