3 years ago

JLL has appointed Sophie Oliver as a Director in its Rating business.

Sophie brings with her an extensive background and 13 years of experience from her tenure at LSH in London. As a strategic rating advisor, Sophie has provided guidance to clients spanning various property types, including offices, industrial and retail spaces. Her expertise also extends to more specialised areas such as TV and film studios.

Sophie's appointment reflects JLL's ongoing commitment to bring top talent onboard to deliver exceptional services to its clients. Her wealth of experience and expertise in the rating sector will further enhance JLL's capabilities in providing industry-leading advice to its clients.

Tim Beattie, Head of UK Rating at JLL said, "I am very excited to be welcoming Sophie to the JLL Rating team. Her knowledge and experience are widely respected in the market and will complement and strengthen our rating service in London and the southeast. Rates are a significant cost for everyone occupying and owning commercial property, and Sophie's appointment strengthens our capability to deliver market-leading advice in this specialist area."

Sophie Oliver, Rating Director at JLL, added, "I am delighted to be joining the JLL Rating team. It is a very exciting opportunity to progress my career with an established and highly knowledgeable team, and I look forward to working with existing JLL clients and securing new business for the firm."
