

JJ Nobrega joins Ward as Head of Learning and Development

1 year ago

Ward Security is delighted to announce that JJ Nobrega has joined Ward as Head of Learning and Development.

JJ will evolve its Learning and Development strategy, the up-skilling and development support for front-line teams, to meeting client objectives, Ward's aspirations and contractual obligations. As a company, the continued growth and development of our frontline colleagues and value proposition is imperative, bringing huge value to both our people and clients.

JJ has worked within the Security industry for 16 years in a variety of roles across corporate, customer service and public services, and has infectious passion for learning, coupled with dedication to fostering growth and development.

JJ comments, "I'm thrilled to join Ward as the new Head of Learning and Development. My purpose is to empower people with the tools and knowledge necessary to excel in their roles and drive the company forward as leader in the security industry with care, consideration, and confidence. I look forward to collaborating to create impactful learning experiences that enhance skills, foster growth, and reinforce our commitment to excellence. Let's embark on this journey together toward continuous learning and success."
