

Mobiess has been acquired by Bellrock

1 year ago

FM service provider Bellrock Property & Facilities Management has announced the acquisition of Mobiess, a provider of integrated mobile data collection solutions to the FM and asset management sector.

Founded by managing director Karl Horner in 2009, Mobiess employs 20 people who design and deliver integrated mobile data collection solutions which empower organisations to transform service delivery and optimise workforce productivity.

The management team has over 50 years of collective experience in delivering services to clients across the industry.

The will sit under Bellrock Technologies under managing director and chief technical officer Adam Smith. The Mobiess integrated mobile workforce management solution is intended to complement Bellrock's Concerto software platform. The combined offer provides a fully integrated workplace management system (IWMS) and computer-aided facilities management (CAFM) system for estates, asset, and workforce management, delivering actionable insights for clients.

Mobiess will continue to provide its applications as an open independent platform enabling integration to any business system.

"I believe that Mobiess will truly transform Bellrock's field service delivery. I am looking forward to introducing Bellrock customers to Mobiess, and exploring the insight and value this will deliver alongside Concerto's powerful capabilities. I am also excited by the opportunities that will come from collaboration between our brilliant Mobiess and Concerto people. This is an exciting time for us all," said Mr Horner.

"Since 2009 Mobiess has delivered solutions which deliver value for clients in the property market; I am delighted to welcome such a highly regarded team and proven product to Bellrock. This acquisition continues our investments in capabilities that strengthen our tech-enabled suite of property management services that help clients achieve their strategic objectives, whilst delivering growth for Bellrock Group,” said Bellrock CEO Paul Bean.

“I’m thrilled to personally welcome Mobiess into the Bellrock Group. Having seen first-hand the synergy between Karl’s team and ours, I’m confident that this is a perfect strategic and cultural match for us. Their innovative products and expertise are a natural complement to our ambitions at Bellrock Technologies.”
