

Silver Investors in People Accreditation for North

2 years ago

Investors in People has awarded integrated technology solutions provider, North, the We Invest in People Silver Accreditation. The recognition signifies that North has successfully implemented the right principles and that its people and leaders are actively committed to ensuring consistency across the business and that everyone across the organisation is feeling the effects.

The We Invest in People Silver Accreditation is awarded to only 20% of the organisations that Investors in People assess. The We Invest in People framework serves as the benchmark against which organisations are evaluated by Investors in People, who then offer valuable guidance and support to enhance aspects such as employee engagement, communication, organisational culture, and work practices.

Paul Devoy, CEO of Investors in People, said: "We'd like to congratulate North. Silver accreditation for the We Invest in People accreditation is a remarkable effort for any organisation, and places North in fine company with a host of organisations that understand the value of people."

Commenting on the award, David Crawford, CEO at North, said: "Receiving the Investors in People Silver Accreditation is a source of immense pride for us. North is nothing without our colleagues and this accreditation process has provided valuable insights. Achieving the accreditation is the result of working collaboratively and closely with colleagues to empower them to drive and improve North. We are now looking forward to continuing to develop and transform our business driven by the invaluable support of our colleagues."

Coreen Bone, Chief People Officer at North added: "We are thrilled to receive the We Invest in People Silver Accreditation. Our people work tirelessly every day to support our customers and colleagues, and we were proud to see this ethos reflected in the feedback. Some real strengths including our robust people development processes and strong colleague engagement and communication were evident throughout the evaluation process, as echoed in the positive response and feedback received."