2 years ago

Business Moves Group (BMG), a UK dedicated office and commercial relocation change management company, has aligned with the Office Moving Alliance (OMA) as a partner.

OMA is an organisation of handpicked vetted partners who are passionate about delivering sustainable, tailor-made moving solutions across the world. It was founded in the US in 2007 by a select group of like-minded market leaders in the commercial relocation industry. In order to be able to service customers globally it started looking for members in other regions of the world, which led to the creation of OMA Europe.

Partnering with OMA will enable BMG to better support its global partners by working with a verified network of expert companies. Similarly, American and European companies looking for workplace solutions support in the UK will be able to rely on BMG's expertise.

Key BMG personnel have recently been engaging with the OMA network. MD Rachel Houghton and chairman Simon Darvall delivered a presentation in America about workplace trends in the UK and the US, while directors Darren Kane and Dave Myers attended a Dublin conference where OMA partners gathered to share insight and best practice.

Rachel Houghton, managing director at BMG, said: "OMA is a highly regarded network and we're delighted to become its latest partner. This move will enhance the support we can offer our international clients and help us to learn best practice from experts around the world. This is an important step in our plans to grow the business in a sustainable way."
