

Pareto FM secures prestigious Mechanical and Electrical (M&E) contract at the Royal College of Physicians

1 year ago

Pareto FM has been awarded a Mechanical and Electrical (M&E) services contract with the Royal College of Physicians (RCP), the oldest royal medical college in England. The contract will see Pareto FM deliver a range of M&E services at the RCP's award-winning Grade 1 listed modernist building in Central London.

Incorporated by Royal Charter in 1518, the RCP stands as a beacon of medical excellence and innovation. With a rich history spanning over five centuries, the RCP has been at the forefront of advancing medical knowledge and shaping healthcare practices. Today, it continues to play a pivotal role in promoting excellence in medicine and supporting physicians in their professional development.

Ian Wiggans, Chief Commercial Officer at Pareto FM expressed his enthusiasm for the collaboration, stating, "We are honoured to be entrusted with the responsibility of managing the Mechanical and Electrical services at the esteemed Royal College of Physicians. This partnership aligns with our dedication to providing unparalleled facilities services and contributing to the success of institutions that shape our society."

Tony Boothe, Director of Estates at the RCP, "We're excited to partner with Pareto FM for our Mechanical and Electrical services. Their dedication to excellence and brand values mirrors our own commitment to maintaining the highest standards in operational efficiency and service quality."

Pareto FM's success in securing the M&E services contract underscores its commitment to delivering excellence in facility management. The partnership with the Royal College of Physicians signifies a shared commitment to maintaining the highest standards in operational efficiency and service quality.
