

PTSG company gives Rotherham United's training kits a fresh look

2 years ago

Premier Technical Services Group Ltd (PTSG), via constituent company Guardian Electrical Compliance (Guardian), has been a sponsor of Rotherham United FC (RUFC) since 2015. The football club is local to Guardian's head office in Sheffield.

This year, Guardian has given over its sponsorship of RUFC's training wear to Rotherham Hospice, to be worn by first team players during a one-off game.

As a consequence, RUFC and their long-term kit suppliers, Puma Teamwear, collaborated to create another fantastic kit which marks the second time that Guardian have proudly handed over the spotlight to a local hospice. The first time was in 2023, when Guardian gave its sponsorship to Bluebell wood, a local children's hospice.

Commercial Director of Rotherham United, Steve Coakley, express his gratitude to Guardian: "For us as a club, it has been particularly telling to see just how many of our commercial partners and sponsors have wanted to support the hospice through their involvement with us and this agreement with Puma Teamwear, which wouldn't have been possible without the selflessness of the people over at Guardian Electrical Compliance, is just the latest example of that."
