

ISS Partners with Totalmobile to Enhance Safety for 7,000 Frontline Workers Across the UK

2 years ago

Totalmobile, a leader in field service management software solutions, is excited to announce a new strategic partnership with ISS, one of the world's premier facilities services companies. Together, they are launching a groundbreaking safety initiative to safeguard 7,000 lone and isolated workers across the UK. This initiative positions ISS as the first company in the UK to implement such a comprehensive safety solution.

For ISS, employee safety isn't just a priority—it's a core value. By incorporating Totalmobile's Lone Worker Protect technology, ISS has set a new standard for safety in its operations. This rollout will see 6,000 Protect apps and 1,000 SOS fobs deployed, giving lone workers the controls they need to ensure they are safe when they have to work in isolated situations with confidence.

"We're absolutely committed to the safety of our frontline workers," said Nicholas Bray, Head of HSEQ at ISS UK & Ireland. "Partnering with Totalmobile to implement their Protect solution is a significant step forward for ISS. As part of our SafeChoice program, it's about making sure that we always look out for each other and all of our people have the tools and agency to always make the safe choice."

- Nicholas Bray, Head of HSEQ at ISS UK & Ireland

David Webb, Managing Director of Property & FM at Totalmobile, echoed the sentiment:

“This partnership with ISS represents a significant milestone. By adopting our Protect solution, ISS is leading the charge in workplace safety, and we’re proud to support them in this vital mission.”

- David Webb, Managing Director of Property & FM at Totalmobile

The decision to partner with Totalmobile followed a rigorous RFP process, with Totalmobile emerging as the top choice for its comprehensive platform and user-friendly interface. As the rollout begins this month, both ISS and Totalmobile are looking forward to the benefits this partnership will bring, not just in safety, but in setting new industry standards.
