

PTSG's electrical testing receives positive client feedback

7 months ago

Premier Technical Services Group Ltd (PTSG), via component company Guardian, has completed an electrical testing project for the UK's largest online printer.

Bluetree Group is an established and rapidly expanding retailer and manufacturer of Print sat across two Carbon Neutral sites; a 160,000-square-foot facility and a 45,000-square-foot facility based in the Yorkshire area. A two-time Virgin Sunday Times Fast Track 100 ranked business, Bluetree Group has grown rapidly from humble beginnings. Founded in 1989, the company operates three brands within Bluetree Print: instantprint, Route 1 Print and Kingsbury Press. Across these divisions sits a huge range of products from flyers and business cards, roller banners and books. Bluetree Group has a customer base of over 700,000, ranging from the largest FTSE 100 companies to small and micro businesses.

The work delivered by Guardian's engineers brought strong praise from the client, who cited their efficiency and professionalism. He also praised TraQ-it, Guardian's online portal, which allows the user to view reports at any time.

Guardian's Complete Managed Compliance Service is based around TraQit. This unique interactive portal contains features such as instant reporting, exporting, hierarchical permission levels, search and filter functionality and more. It ensures customers' records are always current, accurate, consolidated and with a version history capability.
