

ISS extends security partnership with City of London Corporation

10 months ago

ISS, a leading workplace experience and facility management company, is delighted to announce an extension to its long-standing partnership with the City of London Corporation by up to nine years.

The contract, worth around £5 million annually, will see ISS continue to provide security and front of house services at City of London Corporation sites for the next five years, with a potential extension of up to a further four years. ISS previously announced a two-year extension with the City of London in 2022, and this extension will now see the partnership continue until at least 2029.

Since 2018, ISS has provided essential security services for workplaces across the Corporation's estate, including iconic buildings like the Barbican, the Guildhall School of Music & Drama and Mansion House. ISS also provides integrated facilities management services to City of London Private Schools.

Chris Martin, Key Account Portfolio Director at ISS UK, said: "We're delighted to continue working with the City of London Corporation for a further nine years, providing security and front of house services alongside our separate IFM contract for the City Schools. This contract has grown into a true partnership between our two organisations where focus has always been on people, service delivery and making a positive social impact."

"The new contract allows us to build on such a strong foundation and further deliver for the people who interface with the corporation, be its members, employees and the general public who visit the Square Mile. I'm excited to see what we can achieve together."
