

Bellrock invests in Critical Engineering with The Jordon Group merger

2 years ago

Bellrock Group, a trusted provider of technology and expert led property services to well-known organisations across the UK, is pleased to announce that The Jordon Group joined them following a merger on 31st October.

Established in 1965, The Jordon Group has nearly 60 years of experience providing end-to-end turnkey solutions and critical asset maintenance services. Under the leadership of MD Paul Jordon, this family-run business has grown to £40 million in revenue, becoming a national leader in air-conditioning, refrigeration and shopfitting.

Headquartered in Manchester, Jordon employs 120 highly skilled people who serve clients in the fuel station, hospitality, leisure, and retail sectors across the UK. Notable clients include Euro Garages (EG), Motor Fuel Group (MFG), and Center Parcs.

The strategic merger, Bellrock's sixth in three years, will deepen Bellrock's capabilities in self-delivered Critical Engineering to enhance value for current clients whilst opening up opportunities for new clients and expansion into new sectors.

Carlo Alloni, Bellrock Group CEO commented: "I am delighted to welcome the Jordon Group team to Bellrock Group as we continue to invest in the technical capabilities and technology that fuel our growth. This merger represents a powerful alignment of our values and strengths. By combining Bellrock's expertise in property services and technology with The Jordon Group's deep knowledge of HVAC and refrigeration, we are positioning ourselves to deliver even greater value to our clients through our Critical Engineering offering.

"Together, we will continue to challenge industry norms and provide innovative, tech-driven solutions that empower our clients to make strategic, data-backed decisions.”

Paul Jordon, Managing Director of The Jordon Group said:

“I am extremely proud of my team and the growth we have achieved to become the respected business we are today. Their hard work has led us to this next exciting chapter where we join a £230 million multi-disciplinary organisation and unlock exciting new opportunities for our clients and people. We’re looking forward to working in partnership with our new colleagues to develop new solutions for our Bellrock and Jordon clients alike. We have an exciting future ahead.”

The Jordon Business will sit within Bellrock’s Workplace Services business under the leadership of Managing Director Nick Denny who commented:

“The synergies between Bellrock and The Jordon Group unlock incredible opportunities for our clients. Our combined strengths will enhance the range of services we can self-deliver, from cutting-edge technology solutions to critical engineering expertise. This merger allows us to grow together and continue to deliver exceptional outcomes for our clients while supporting the growth and development of our teams.” Nick Denny, Managing Director of Bellrock Workplace Services.
