The strategic acquisition will further bolster Mecsia’s growth trajectory, enhancing its regional capabilities and expanding its service offerings to clients across the UK. The acquisition of ECG strengthens Mecsia’s position as a nationwide technical services provider and expands the group to 1,200 people with a combined turnover of £200m.

Jon Coiley, CEO at Mecsia said: “We are thrilled to welcome ECG to Mecsia. The acquisition aligns with our commitment to delivering exceptional compliance-led technical services and expands our ability to meet the diverse needs of clients across the UK.

ECG’s experience and regional strength are invaluable as we continue to grow and innovate in our industry. The combination enables both companies to share even more resource, capacity and capabilities. Mecsia continues to deliver an increasing breadth of self-delivered services across an expanding geographic area.”

ECG will continue to operate from its Glasgow base, retaining its teams of skilled professionals while integrating into Mecsia’s extensive network. With a strong reputation and shared ethical values, ECG will continue to be recognised as a first-class service provider within the industry, aligning seamlessly with the standards of Mecsia’s group companies.

Stephen Hawthorne, MD at ECG said: “This is a perfect strategic fit for ECG. The combination will allow us to strengthen our core service provision to our existing client base, both geographically and technically. During the acquisition process, it became abundantly clear that our intrinsic values and visions were aligned. The whole team is excited and eager about the next chapter of our journey together and we look forward to being part of the Mecsia family.”
