

Arcus FM attains year-on-year sustainability improvement with SFMI Gold Award

2 years ago

Technology Led, People Driven' Facilities Management company Arcus FM has maintained and improved its SFMI Gold Award in 2024 assessment.

This achievement not only reflects Arcus's unwavering commitment to sustainability but also showcases a remarkable improvement, with the company's overall score rising from 72% to an impressive 83% in the latest assessment.

This year's recognition highlights Arcus's ability to enhance ESG performance, even amidst significant organisational changes, such as the integration of The Trios Group.

The SFMI commended Arcus for successfully maintaining its strong culture and sustainability focus during this period of growth, a challenge many businesses struggle to overcome during acquisitions.

Earlier this year, Arcus released its fourth annual Sustainability Impact Report, reaffirming its commitment to transparency and continuous improvement in sustainability. Covering the 2023/24 fiscal year, the report details progress in emissions reduction, waste management, and fleet electrification, reflecting the company's dedication to driving meaningful change in facilities management. Read the full report here.

Chris Green, CEO of Arcus FM said: "We're immensely proud to have maintained our Gold status and thrilled by the significant improvement to our score. This achievement underscores our vision for ESG and our commitment to our communities, customers and the planet."

Vicky Downham, HSQE Director at Arcus FM, emphasised the company's commitment to sustainability. She said: "Securing the SFMI Gold Award for another year underscores our dedication to sustainable development. We continuously strive to exceed compliance and expectations, and we are proud to partner with the SFMI and use their assessments to gain valuable feedback and shape an even stronger, more sustainable future."