

Bidvest Noonan to chair global initiative on tall building security

12 months ago

Bidvest Noonan has partnered with The Institute of Strategic Risk Management (ISRM) to launch a Special Interest Group dedicated to supporting the global tall-building sector. With a strong track record of securing high-profile tall buildings, Bidvest Noonan will chair this initiative.

The Special Interest Group will focus on identifying and understanding threats while developing insights and solutions to address the challenges the sector faces. The group will bring key stakeholders together, including service providers, property managers, blue light networks and others, to advance knowledge, share insights, and establish frameworks that contribute to a safer, more resilient built environment.

Dr David Rubens, Executive Director at the ISRM, said: “The pace of change in today’s world is accelerating, creating new risks that cannot be tackled in isolation. This Special Interest Group provides an essential platform for bringing together expertise from across the industry to help organisations anticipate and navigate emerging threats. I want to thank Bidvest Noonan for their leadership in this initiative.”

Liz Cummins, Managing Director at Bidvest Noonan, added: “While every city and building is unique, many challenges and emerging threats in securing tall buildings are shared worldwide. That is why we are so pleased to work with the ISRM to bring together industry leaders, share insights, and help shape best practices for the future. We look forward to collaborating with stakeholders and sharing the expertise we have developed in supporting iconic tall buildings.”

Photo caption: (Left to right: Ian Martin, Director of Risk and Intelligence, Bidvest Noonan; Liz Cummins, Managing Director, Bidvest Noonan; Dr David Rubens, Executive Director, The ISRM; Cormac Sheils, Chief Operating Officer, Bidvest Noonan.)