

BPI launches exclusive online auction featuring high-precision CNC machining centres

11 months ago

BPI, a leading asset disposal specialist, has launched an exclusive online auction showcasing a range of high-precision multi-axis CNC machining centres from a renowned precision engineering firm. These high-spec machines are often used in sectors such as aerospace, automotive and energy.

As part of a strategic restructuring to optimise operations and enhance efficiency, the company has partnered with BPI to streamline its asset disposal process. This curated sale includes 10 premium lots, all of which have been meticulously inspected and detailed by BPI specialists to ensure complete transparency and accurate descriptions.

Key auction highlights include:

- 2023 DMG Mori NXH8000
- 2021 DMG Mori NHX5000
- 2023 DN Solutions Doosan VT1100M
- 2018 & 2019 DMG Mori DMU Models
- 2018 & 2017 Mazak VARIAXIS

Each lot is backed by comprehensive specifications, allowing buyers to make informed decisions and enjoy a seamless purchasing experience.

The auction is set to close on Monday 27th January from 14:00, with all collections available from Chelmsford, CM1. Interested buyers can view the lots at:

This auction provides a unique opportunity for precision manufacturers to acquire high-quality CNC machining centres at a fraction of the cost of new equipment. These machines, in excellent working condition, offer incredible value and are poised to enhance operational efficiency, increase productivity, and support long-term business growth.

Richard Travis, Industrial Specialist at BPI, said: "This is a fantastic opportunity for manufacturers to acquire state-of-the-art CNC machinery at highly competitive prices. These assets are ready for immediate use, offering both established businesses and startups an effective way to elevate their operations without the hefty price tag of brand-new equipment."

The auction is hosted on BPI's secure, user-friendly 24/7 online platform, BPI Auctions, providing global access for businesses to browse, bid, and secure high-end assets with ease and confidence.
