

Keenan Recycling joins the NOE CPC framework for food waste management

7 months ago

Keenan Recycling has officially been accepted onto the NHS North of England Commercial Procurement Collaborative (NOECPC) Total Waste Management III framework for Waste Management Services (Lot 1B Food Waste). This marks a major milestone in the company's mission to provide sustainable food waste solutions to even more organisations across the UK.

What does this mean?

The NOE CPC framework is a prestigious procurement consortium that provides national support to NHS trusts and wider public sector bodies. Being awarded a spot on this framework means Keenan Recycling is now a trusted provider for food waste management services for NHS organisations. It also makes it easier for NHS trusts to work directly with Keenan Recycling to manage their food waste sustainably, helping reduce environmental impact while supporting cost-effective practices.

This achievement puts the company alongside other top-tier suppliers in showcasing their commitment to excellence in the waste management sector.

Gary, Keenan Recycling's UK Sales Manager and a key driver of this success, shared his excitement: "This is a game-changer for Keenan Recycling. Being accepted onto the NOE CPC framework allows us to extend our reach and impact across the healthcare sector, supporting NHS Trusts to meet their sustainability goals while ensuring compliance and high-quality service delivery. It's another glass ceiling smashed, and I couldn't be prouder of the team for making this happen."

Why this matters

With this framework, Keenan Recycling can support a wide range of NHS organisations, from teaching hospitals to community healthcare providers, by offering innovative and reliable food waste solutions. As the healthcare sector faces increasing pressure to adopt sustainable practices, they are proud to partner with the NHS to reduce food waste and carbon emissions, one Trust at a time.

Who Keenan Recycling will be supporting

The NOE CPC framework is accessible to NHS organisations and the wider public sector.

Looking ahead

This is just the beginning. At Keenan Recycling, they believe in turning waste into opportunity, and their inclusion in the NOE CPC framework will enable them to deliver innovative, sustainable solutions that benefit both the environment and the communities they serve.

If you're part of an NHS organisation looking for expert food waste management services, Keenan Recycling are there to help.
