

LSH expands Leeds office with a wave of dynamic young professionals

2 years ago

Lambert Smith Hampton \(LSH\) has announced the appointment of three new graduate and placement surveyors to its Leeds office. This strategic move strengthens the firm's regional and divisional expertise while fostering the growth of young talent within the property industry.

Grace King, a student at Leeds Beckett University, has joined the Office Advisory team as a placement student. Grace is actively involved in leasing and letting commercial properties, contributing to key activities such as negotiating heads of terms and advising clients on maximizing asset value.

Lila Tiwana, a recent graduate from Nottingham Trent University, has joined the Asset Advisory team. With prior experience at Knight Frank, Lila brings valuable expertise in property sales, valuation of distressed assets, and property auctions.

Hannah Ketteringham, a placement student from Northumbria University, is contributing to both the Valuation and Lease Advisory teams. Her responsibilities include negotiating rent reviews and lease renewals, as well as producing valuation reports across various sectors.

Richard Corby, Head of Office at Lambert Smith Hampton in Leeds, said: "We're delighted to welcome Grace, Lila, and Hannah to our Leeds team. Their enthusiasm, fresh ideas, and immediate impact are a testament to the value of investing in the next generation of property professionals and I'm eager to see their careers develop with us."
